

Eve Sweetser

Eve Sweetser is Professor in the Department of Linguistics at the University of California, Berkeley, where she is also coordinator of the Gesture and Multimodality Group, and a founding faculty member and past director of the Program in Cognitive Science. Her research program lies generally in cognitive linguistic approaches to the syntax and semantics of human language, including multimodality and embodiment, co-speech gesture, metaphor, poetics, and the semantics of grammatical constructions (especially conditionals). In 2012 she co-edited Viewpoint in language: a multimodal perspective (Cambridge UP) with Barbara Dancygier, and in 2014 she co-authored the Cambridge textbook Figurative Language with Dancygier. She was a Co-PI with George Lakoff of the Berkeley MetaNet analysis group (2013-15). Currently, she is a contributor of three articles to the in-press Cambridge Handbook of Cognitive Linguistics, and is working with Bonnie Howe and Therese DesCamp on a cognitive linguistics textbook for biblical scholars, Metaphors They Lived By.
